"The stars incline, but do not compel"

Horoscope

Saturday, January 23, 1915.
(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate).

This is a day in which to be cautious, if the astrologers interpret the stars correctly. While the Sun and Uranus are in places held to be strongly evil, Mercury and Venus are in benefic aspect. Late in the evening the Sun is helpful to human activities.

When the sway is uncertain it is well to act with extreme circumspection. While this configuration prevails Uranus subjects, those born under Aquarius, should be careful to avoid accidents, and it is held to be an inauspicious time for making acquaintances or contracts.

Uranus is held to influence the public mind toward extreme views on questions of moment and to cause it to be easily swayed by sophistries.

While the planet has malign influence it is believed to be wise to postpone all decisions that may affect future acts.

This is not a good direction for diplomacy or statecraft. Acrimonious debates in legislatures are probable.

The rule of the planets today is good for women in the artistic professions, particularly for writers.

Weddings and love affairs are reasonably lucky under this configuration.

A return to simpler modes of life will increase the number of marriages, the seers declare.

Since Venus is believed to direct whatever is of first importance to women, the planet is encouraging today to all who are concerned with matters of dress. Fashions of American origin will bring fortunes to many designers, some of whom are women, it is said.

It is prophesied that the railways will have troubles, owing to the transportation of live stock. A strike is indicated and an accident is foreshadowed.

A scandal due to the loss of valuable official documents is prognosticated for England.

Heavy storms next month will cause loss of life in the west and a disaster in one of the southwestern states.

Anxiety for the governor of Illinois is foretold. He will face problems of grave importance.

Persons whose birthdate it is have rather a sinister omen for the year. Business and domestic affairs may cause trouble. Travel or change will not be advantageous.

Children born on this day may be restless in disposition and fond of roving. Delay in realizing their ambitions may be discouraging. They are likely to be honest, industrious and clever.

Better Than Calomel

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lumpy" and "heavy." Note how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

MODELS FOR TWO APRONS WITH LACE DECORATIONS

A novel model for an apron is of handkerchief linen cut in one piece, the sides slanting off and the corners rounded off a little. This is hemmed around and the decoration consists of a band of soft ribbon set on a few inches from the bottom and held in place by small motifs of any preferred lace. Cluny and filet are very effective, while Valenciennes is always dainty as a trimming to wash goods, writes a contributor. Above the ribbon is a spray of embroidery worked in white or the color of the ribbon, as liked best. The best is a repetition of the trimming below and confines the fullness at the waist line. A second smaller spray of embroidery is worked upon the bib and a frill of lace at top and bottom of the apron is the dainty finish.

Another pretty style for an apron that is quickly made requires a piece of linen or organdy about 18 or 20 inches square, according to the desired size. This is hemmed all around and edged with lace or a button hole scalloping. The four corners are decorated with insets of lace, worked in embroidery or in any way the decorator pleases. A casing is set across one of the points for taking a ribbon, which when drawn up and tied around the waist creates a bib. Feather and cross-stitch work are very effective on an apron in this shape.

THINGS A MOTHER SHOULD KNOW.

Breathing impure air lowers the health, depresses the spirits, and spoils the complexion. Children are more easily affected by the injurious qualities of impure air than grown people are. Children who are subject to bronchitis and chest colds should always wear flannel nightgowns with double breasted fronts. Don't put heavy bed coverings on the little ones' beds. They cause night sweats which are weakening. Many children are restless at night and sleep badly, merely because the room they sleep in is stuffy and ill ventilated.

Use as little soap as possible in washing babies. All soaps contain some alkali which is drying to the tender skin of an infant. To remove scurf from a baby's head, rub a little glycerin into the scalp.

The average length of a new born baby is from twenty to twenty-two inches.

Do not aim at making your baby fat. Overfatness sometimes shows a tendency to rickets. Too much starchy food makes babies fat, but gives them less stamina than a milk diet.

Don't let little boys or girls wear heavy overcoats. They are exhausting.

A child's first teeth are twenty in number. They should be all cut at latest when the child is 3 years old. Little children are often allowed to walk out in thin soled shoes. This is always risky.

Never give medicine to children which have been ordered for a grown person.

HOW SILVER IS ARRANGED AT A BIG DINNER

A subscriber asks for a description of the proper way to place soup spoons, fruit spoons, knives, forks, and so on, at a big dinner. The editor of the department answers the question as follows:

"The accepted way of arranging silver at each cover is to place the forks at the left of the plate in the order in which they are to be used and the knives and spoons at the right in the same order. This does not include the silver for dessert, which is brought in with the dessert. Bread and butter spreaders are frequently laid on the bread and butter plates. For a dinner of soup, meat, salad, dessert and coffee, the silver is arranged thus: at the left of the plate the fork for meat on the outside and the salad fork next, at the right of the plate the meat knife next to the plate and the soup spoon next to it on the outside. Bouillon spoons are used for soup. I have never heard of using them for canned fruit."

GERMAN PAPERS MAKE PROTEST

Berlin, Jan. 21, by wireless to Sayville, L. I.—An official communication given out tonight contains the following article published in the North German Gazette:

"As reported by way of London, Chairman Flood of the foreign relations committee of the United States house of representatives, referring to a memorandum of the German government at a meeting of that committee, created the impression that Germany had composed with America the question of supplying war contraband to her enemies. This is a gross mistake.

"The memorandum quoted by Mr. Flood only admits that the prevailing principles of international law do not entitle Germany legally to oppose the supplying of war materials to her enemies by neutral private persons, the United States being, as was said at the close of the memorandum, properly speaking, entitled to tolerate such supplies.

"According to the principles of international law, the United States, of course, likewise is entitled to forbid all contraband trade with all the belligerents by proclaiming a prohibition of the exportation of war material, and all the more so as the trade in war material with England and France has assumed such dimensions as to jeopardize the neutrality not only of the American government, but, indeed, of the American nation.

"Such a measure would be the more appropriate, as England does not even permit internationally allowed American trade with Germany, but most unscrupulously seizes all goods destined for Germany's economic life, the whole American trade with the belligerents thus resulting in partial encouragement to our adversaries.

"Furthermore, and this is a fact of the greatest importance to us, the supplying of our enemies with war material will most surely be cause for the prolongation of the war. It is consequently in contradiction of the United States' repeated assurances that it wishes an early conclusion of peace and that it would be ready to co-operate for that purpose."

Chairman Flood of the house foreign relations committee on January 5, in a statement during an argument with Representative Bartholdt, who was before the committee advocating his resolution which would empower the president to prohibit the exportation of arms and ammunition to the European belligerents, said he understood the German government, through its foreign office, had made it plain it did not expect the United States to stop such exports.

INVESTIGATING IDAHO SCANDAL

Boise, Ida., Jan. 21.—The thirteenth Idaho legislature, through its special investigation committee, tonight turned the calcium on the Carey act fund, at one time as large as a half-million dollars, now with a balance of $4230. The committee will endeavor to ascertain where the money went and if it was legitimately expended. Heber Q. Hale, chief clerk of the land department, was on the witness stand most of the evening. He placed the committee in possession of data covering the Carey act segregations made to Idaho. State Land Commissioner George A. Day and Register Ned Jenness have been subpoenaed and will testify tomorrow.

The pledge of all three political parties of this state was kept today with passage by the house of the Hart senate resolution submitting to the electors of Idaho for their approval or rejection the question of whether the constitution of Idaho shall be so amended as to add to it a section forever prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. Not a dissenting vote was registered against the resolution, and during its passage through both houses only one vote is on record against it. The amendment must be ratified at the general election in 1918 and becomes effective May 1, 1917. It does not require approval by the governor.

A second attack on the public utilities act was made through the introduction in the senate by Senator Johnson of a bill to repeal the law passed two years ago creating it. The introduction of a new direct primary bill and an act to put into effect the initiative, referendum and recall, piled on the legislature a number of important issues today.

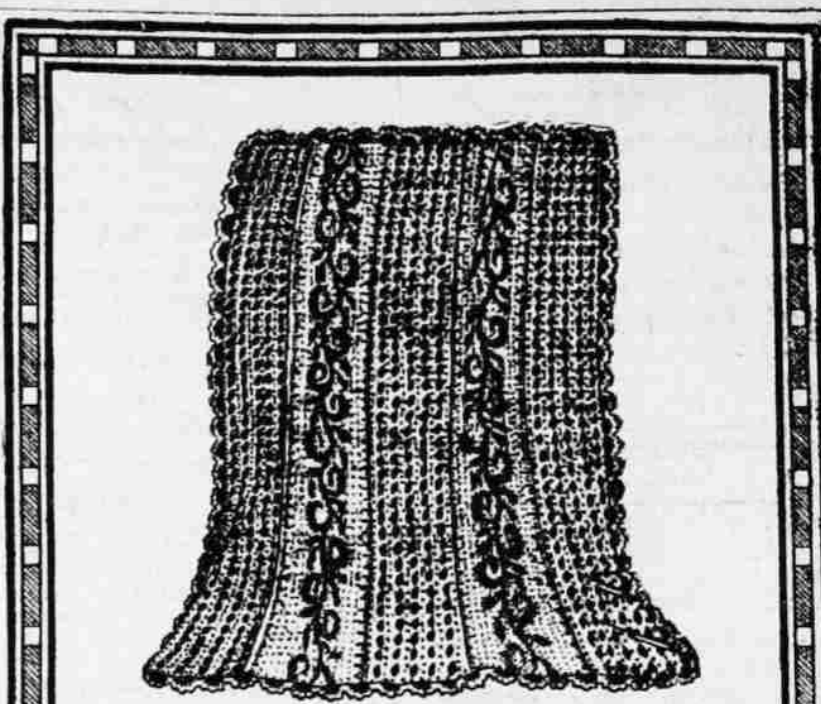

The direct primary act has as its sponsors the following Republicans: Johnston, Koelsch, McGowan, Shattuck and Randall. It does away with a state-wide primary for nomination of national and state officers and substitutes therefore a state convention of the delegates to which are elected under a primary system, for the nomination of all county candidates at a primary election.

The initiative, referendum and recall act is by Johnston. The initiative is applied to the initiation of state laws and city ordinances. The referendum feature refers both to the popular vote for ratification, and the recall applies to state, county, city and town officers. To initiate or refer a state law or secure a recall and election, signatures in each county to the number of 10 per cent of the last vote for governor is required. To initiate a city ordinance, 25 per cent is required.

Governor Alexander tonight appointed Daniel L. Ingard of Payette, Louis A. Blackman of Lewiston and O. G. Zuck of Twin Falls, members of the state board of horticulture. Harry L. Day of Wallace has accepted an appointment as the governor's personal representative at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

WHEN A STORM IS APPROACHING

When a heavy storm comes up in the daytime and the sky gets dark we all turn on the electric light. Sometimes this happens so suddenly that the companies which supply the electric current are taken unawares with only the normal daytime current that is entirely inadequate to meet a general demand.

Hence electric companies have to keep a man with a keen weather eye constantly "on the job." One of the largest concerns in New York has recently installed a storm detector similar to a wireless-telegraph receiving apparatus, which is affected by neighboring thunderstorms and announces their presence by ringing a bell. The nearer the storm the more frequently does the bell ring, and within an hour to a half-hour before the storm breaks the bell rings continuously. Thus there is ample warning to prepare additional generators for service when abnormal demands for current are felt.
